

Writing About the Similarities Between Then and Now

Continuity in Culture: Romans in Pompeii

Authors: Lori Howell, Melody Nishinaga, Sarah Poku, and Warren Soper

Poetry Snapshots

Savage Chickens

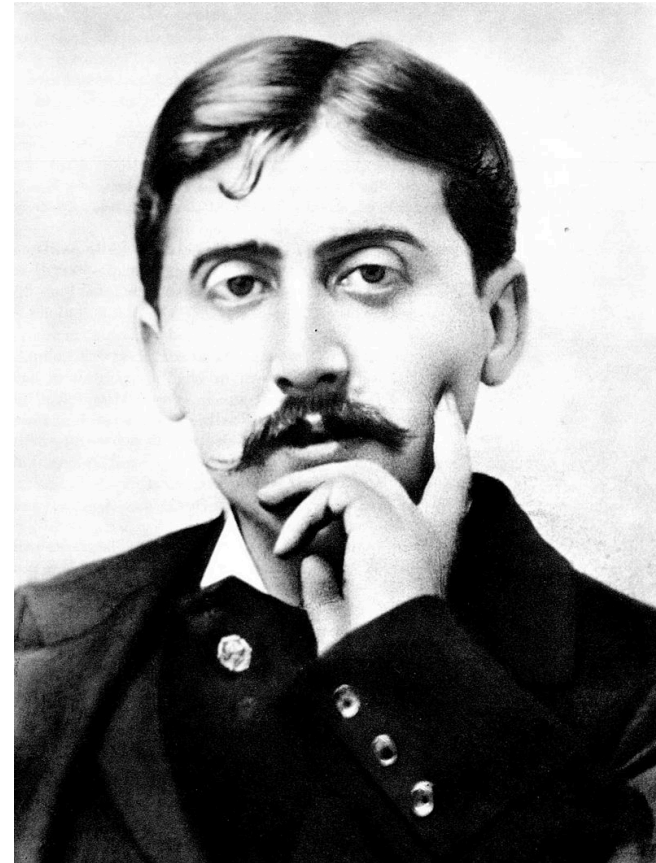

by Doug Savage

The Last Day of Pompeii...A Poem

The features of our face are hardly more than gestures which force of habit made permanent.

Nature, like the destruction of Pompeii, like the metamorphosis of a nymph into a tree, has arrested us in an accustomed movement.

Marcel Proust
1871-1922

French novelist, critic, essayist

Cast in Stone

by Nigel Fox

All there cast in Stone
Pompeii a gift to all
They laying down as if sleeping
Vesuvius aggrieved and granting
To some a later undeserved mortality

